

Luna is a six-year-old male Southern Resident Orca Whale who currently resides in Nootka Sound on the west coast of Canada. He became separated from his family over four years ago. Resident orcas normally spend their entire lives within the pod to which they are born.

Luna, the friendly orca of Nootka Sound, is in trouble and needs help. News stories which focus on his encounters with boats have been published worldwide. As a result, some people have called for Luna to be sent to an aquarium, or even killed. Those options are neither acceptable nor necessary. We believe there is no need to send Luna into a life of captivity, or to shoot him. There are far better choices. We support attempting to reunite Luna with his pod.

Take action to save Luna by visiting
www.reuniteluna.com

Luna is a six-year-old male Southern Resident Orca Whale who currently resides in Nootka Sound on the west coast of Canada. He became separated from his family over four years ago. Resident orcas normally spend their entire lives within the pod to which they are born.

Luna, the friendly orca of Nootka Sound, is in trouble and needs help. News stories which focus on his encounters with boats have been published worldwide. As a result, some people have called for Luna to be sent to an aquarium, or even killed. Those options are neither acceptable nor necessary. We believe there is no need to send Luna into a life of captivity, or to shoot him. There are far better choices. We support attempting to reunite Luna with his pod.

Take action to save Luna by visiting
www.reuniteluna.com